

PURPLE LINE

Art-in-Transit

Beacon Heights-East Pines

NEW CARROLLTON METRO MOSAIC

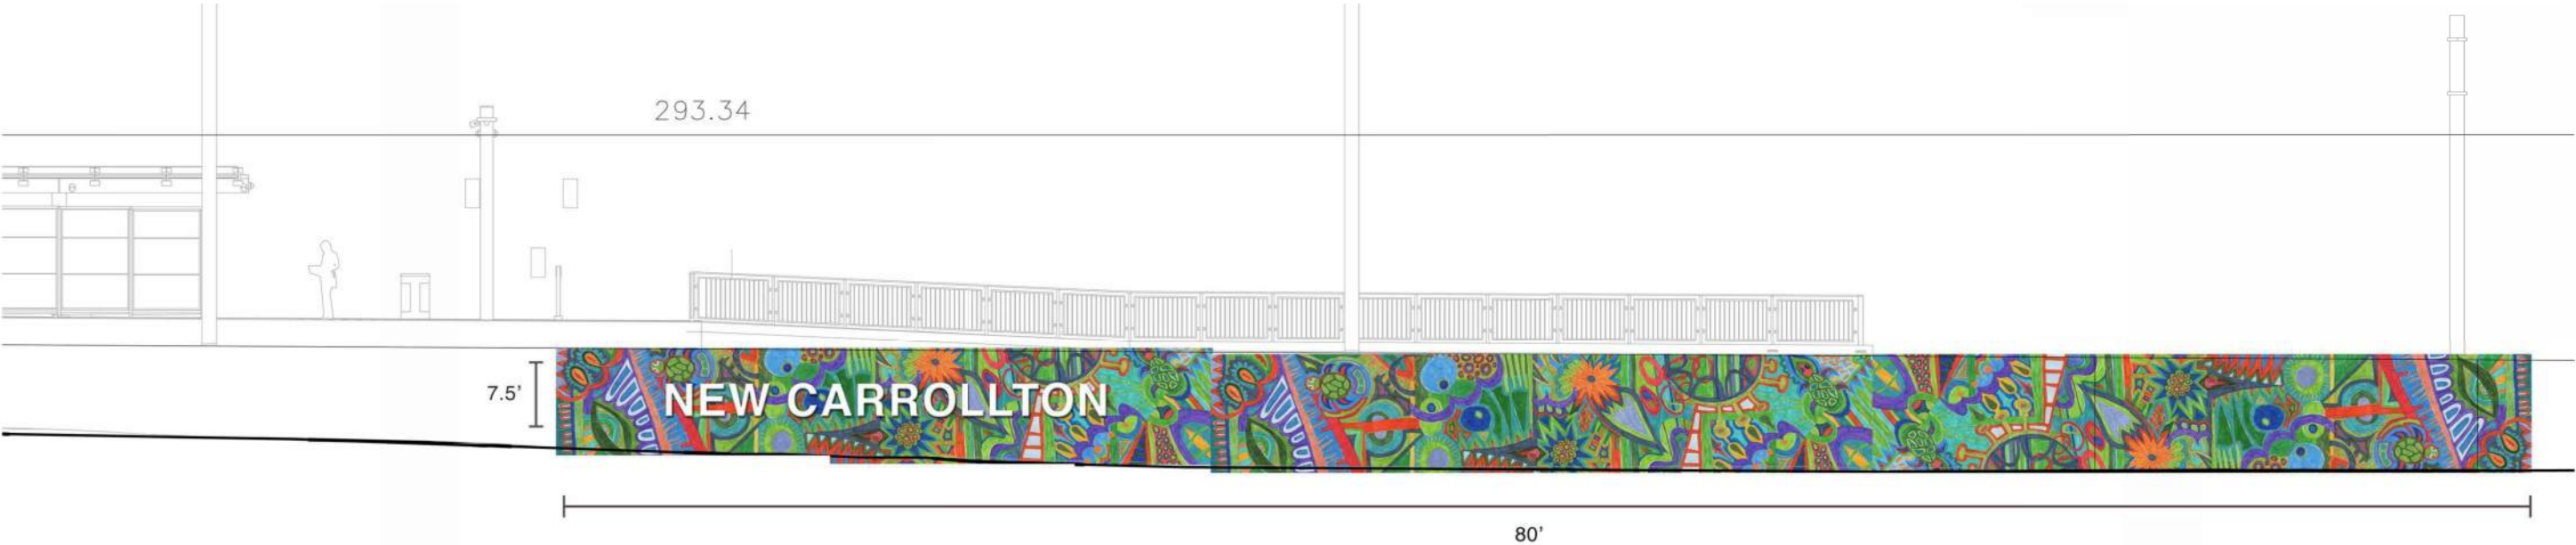

SAMPLE TILES

Note: Station name will be updated to
"Beacon Heights/East Pines"

As a proud resident [of Prince George's County], I want to create an art piece that has a visual ‘wow’ factor, signifying the start of something great. The work excites and invigorates the viewer. Riders are reminded of the flow they experience as the move through space and time with the other passengers.

The mural colors are rich and intense...The artwork will shimmer with the changing of the light. The tiny mirrors placed throughout add another element of reflectivity, making the mural seem to come to life depending on the time of day. Viewers will be excited and delighted to see such a powerful, colorful and joyful design radiating from the station.

Purple is one of the main colors woven throughout the mural....Other elements of significance are also woven throughout the mural...we included the Maryland State flower, the Black-Eyed Susan. This image will also be repeated and dancing through the space. Other significant elements could be introduced as well to add to the dialogue.
